The most sophisticated audience to be gathered in a city whose chief pride is its sophistication roared and stamped and whistled and hissed last night, all in their appropriate places, at a production of "After Dark," the melodrama that made William A. Brady famous more than thirty years ago.

With the president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry himself playing the part of Old Tom, the thrilling old play was put on at the Friars' Frolic at the Manhattan Opera House. It was the hit of the evening.

He Saves His Daughter

All 30,000 cubic feet were being violently agitated by the struggling Eliza when the prow of the rowboat came into view and Old Tom himself struggled perilously to a standing position and cast an appraising eye over the 30,000 cubic feet of water.

Once, twice, thrice Eliza sank, and then Old Tom removed his coat, displaying a flannel shirt of that startling shade with renders the wearer immune to cold.

Then that sophisticated audience had the inestimable privilege of seeing William A. Brady, red shirt and all, leap head foremost into 30,000 cubic feet of water. It was an impressive sight, and they stamped and whistled and cheered, secure in the knowledge, at that time denied to Old Tom, that presently he would discover that it was his daughter he had rescued.

James L. Crane played the villain, and was hissed properly. John Cronwell was Gordon Chumley. In its palmier days "After Dark" never had a more enthusiastic audience.

George White and his show girls also put on a show which got hearty applause. Mr. White, it appeared as the plot developed, was having a lot of trouble with one of his actresses named George Lemaire, who was certain that art and his reputation demanded certain concessions, which Mr. White was unwilling to make.

A Manager's Unhappy Lot
Mr. Lemaire then quit and went out to start a show of his own, getting a job with George M. Cohan. Mr. Cohan not only adorned the tale but supplied the moral in his final line: "The manager's end isn't an easy one, see."

The audience applauded Mr. Cohan cordially, as they did every time he appeared. He was third in the genealogy of masters of ceremony, which ran like this: John Meehan introduced Eddie Cantor and Pat Rooney and was succeeded by Jim Corbett, who introduced Harry Kelly and Richard Carle, and was succeeded by George M. Cohan, who introduced Lew Fields and Willie Collier.

At a late hour masters of ceremony still were being succeeded. Among those whom they introduced were Eddie Miller, Donald Kerr, Arthur West, James Barton, George Leonard, Jack Boyle, Irving Berlin, the Vincent Lopez Kings of Harmony and the double quartet of the Police Glee Club—supplied by Friar Richard Enright, who couldn't come himself.

About $15,000 was realized.

Havana Drug Seizures Point
To Barcelona Smugglers' Ring

HAVANA, Cuba, May 22 (By Mail).—Seizure by Havana customs inspectors of several valuable contraband shipments of opium has given rise to the theory that a strong smuggling organization is working through the Spanish Port of Barcelona. The drug captured has been found in the baggage of passengers arriving from that port.

One consignment, which was found in a warehouse here, is valued at about $250,000.

Church Confers Honors on Jesuit Missionaries

Delegation of 20 to Sail
To-day for Philippines;
British Denied Passports
for Journey to Bombay

In a solemn ceremony last night in the Church of St. Francis Xavier, in West Sixteenth Street, the twenty Jesuit missionaries who will sail to-day for the Philippines to take over the duties of the Spanish Jesuits there were given the blessing of the church. There was not a vacant seat in the church when Archbishop Hayes and the procession of ecclesiastics and missionaries made their way to the altar. Outside the crowds were being kept back by the police.

The report that the missionaries were kept from journeying to Bombay, India, because the British government would not approve their passports was spoken of by the Archbishop and Father Rockwell, who is provincial of the New York-Maryland province.

Archbishop Hayes said: "The might of a great empire has kept them from going to the place that the Father General of the Society of Jesus meant for them. But I am glad that they are going to labor under the flag of their own country."

As it is arranged now, the American Jesuits will go to the Philippines and the Spanish Jesuits now in the Philippines will go to Bombay. Father Rockwell said it was necessary for the Spanish missionaries to go to Bombay because of the expulsion of the German priests who had been conducting the missions there prior to the war.

Archbishop Hayes was the celebrant of the services and pronounced the benediction. Monsignor Dunn and Monsignor Freri were archdeacons and Father Rockwell was archpriest. The Rev. P. J. Casey, S. J., rector of St. Francis Xavier, and the Rev. Joseph McCutcheon, of Boston, were deacons.

The departing missionary unit consists of ten priests and ten scholastic fathers, headed by the Rev. John Thomkins, S. J., former associate editor of The Messenger of the Sacred Heart.

Two More Boys Dead
Of Powder Blast Burns

Fourth Victim of Explosion in Staten Island Cave Not Expected to Live

Albert Stoggi, fifteen years old, and Arthur Bagano, seventeen, of Mariner's Harbor, Staten Island, died last night at St. Vincent's Hospital, West Brighton, S. I., from burns suffered in an explosion of giant powder Friday night. Two other boys were injured, one of them fatally, in the explosion which took place in a cave on Arlington Avenue, used by the lads as a rendezvous. John Magzini, eleven years old, died from his injuries Saturday night. Donald Catterelli, the fourth boy, is at Staten Island Hospital. It was said last night that he could not recover.

An investigation by District Attorney Joseph F. Malloy disclosed that the four boys had been in the habit of gathering in the cave to smoke cigarettes and conduct the rites of a juvenile secret society. The District Attorney also learned that the fifty-pound can of giant powder, which exploded when one of the boys threw a lighted cigarette into it, had been taken from the freight depot of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad at Mariner's Harbor. Funerals of the three dead boys will be held from their respective homes to-morrow morning.

The star performer of the group is Alma Mann, eleven, who dives from a height of forty feet bound in seventy feet of rope from which she extricates herself under water in less than a minute. Another is Virginia Stern, eight years old, who weighs forty pounds and can dive from a height of forty feet.

The presentation took place after an enthusiastic reception had been given to the Italian envoy by the Italian people of Rochester at the unveiling of a captured Austrian field piece.

War Cure Suggested

Elmira College Head Urges
Education Instead of Warships

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 12.—"Give Elmira College the cost of one battleship and we will guarantee to do more to establish and maintain world peace than a whole navy, if given corresponding cooperation," said President Frederick Lent in a baccalaureate sermon to the seventy-eight members of the graduating class to-night.

Dr. Lent said that a revival of the real basic education of former days, and the better mental training of women who will become mothers will be a great factor for world peace.

Seven Amendments To Constitution of State Up in Fall

Voters to Pass on Literacy Test for Suffrage, Soldiers' Preference and Raise of Assembly Pay

ALBANY, June 12.—Seven proposed amendments to the constitution will be submitted to the voters for ratification at the state election next November. Four of them are of general state-wide application and three are of a local character, though requiring the approval of a majority of the electors of the entire state.

Foremost in the list is the proposal to impose a literacy test on all new voters. "After January 1, 1922," according to the text of the amendment, "no person shall be entitled to vote by attaining majority, by naturalization or otherwise, unless such person is also able, except for physical disability, to read and write English, and suitable laws shall be passed by the Legislature to enforce this provision."

The literacy test amendment, originally introduced in the Legislature of 1917 by Elton R. Brown, of Watertown, then majority leader of the Senate, has been before each succeeding legislative session. The resolution proposing the amendment was adopted in 1917, but had to be amended the next year in order to make it applicable to the women who, in the fall of 1917, were granted the voting privilege by the male electors of the state. Other technical changes were necessary from year to year, and it was not until the spring of the current year that the amendment, in its final form, had been adopted by two successive legislatures, stipulated by constitutional provision as a requisite for submission to the people.

Another amendment which has been before the Legislature for the last four years proposes to increase the salaries of Senators and Assemblymen from $15,000 to $30,000 a year. The same amendment was defeated by popular vote in 1919, when the people also refused to sanction an increase in the salaries of the judges of the Court of Appeals.

Extension to the soldiers, sailors and marines, who have served the United States in time of war, of the civil service preference now allowed soldiers and sailors who fought in the Civil War, is proposed in a third amendment. Provision is made, however, that the veterans to be given preference must have been residents of the state at the time they entered military or naval service, with Civil War veterans having preference over the veterans of all other wars on the same list.

The fourth proposed amendment seeks to give the Legislature power to establish children's courts of domestic relations.

One of the local amendments would permit the adoption of a new form of government of Nassau and Westchester counties as a substitute for the present Board of Supervisors.

The other amendments seek to authorize the sale of portions of the old Erie Canal, one portion between Rome and Utica and the other between the easterly portion of the village of Mohawk and the boundary line between Herkimer and Oneida counties.

of the train, brought it to a quick stop by use of emergency brakes. The body was removed to the Old Slip police station. A Standard Oil employee's tag and 20 cents were found in a pocket of the woman's gown.

Police identification of the body as that of Eva Piotti had not been verified late last night.

Subway Train Kills Woman at Rector St.

A woman believed to be Eva Piotti, forty years old, of 114 East Twenty-second Street, Bayonne, N. J., an employee of the Standard Oil Company, was struck and killed by a northbound local Seventh Avenue subway train 60 feet south of the Rector Street station yesterday.

No one saw the woman descend from the station platform to the track. The ticket office at Rector Street station is on a level above that of the platform, and whether the woman had walked the tracks from South Ferry or had stepped off the platform at Rector Street could not be determined.

The Telephone Job When New York Moves in May

MAY 1st to you means one day of moving—the climax of weeks of preparation.

To us it means the high point in a huge two-months' job of moving telephone equipment and installing it in subscribers' new locations.

Each year, from April to June, this work must be done under continuous high pressure. This year we had to handle 77,000 orders for the connection, disconnection and relocation of telephone apparatus.

A single order meant moving from one to 150 telephones, a small monitor switchboard or a big private branch exchange. Hundreds of buildings had to be surveyed to determine the exact nature of the changes to be made.

Working on an emergency basis, our plant men broke all records for the May moving period—an achievement in service to New York City that shows how earnestly every telephone employee is working to again give you telephone service when and where you want it.
